

Mia Holborn

Mia has been Hospitaller and chaplaincy team leader at Guy's and St Thomas' since 2001, she previously worked at Barts and the London and Bromley hospitals.

The GSTT chaplaincy team is vibrant and highly diverse, around 20 languages are spoken, people represent 8 faith and belief groups and 5 continents. Around 40 chaplains have been trained in the team and a PG Cert for healthcare chaplaincy is currently being developed.

Mia has been an Anglican priest since 2002, and was ordained as a URC minister in 1989.

Mia is also senior (lead) chaplain for the London Fire Brigade and the national Firefighters Memorial Trust.

Mia's particular interests lie in multi-faith and belief working, end of life care, clinical ethics and pastoral psychological care.

Mia is married to David, principal of a theological college, and they have two student children, and a cat. She spends a lot of time on the M1 between London and Nottingham.
